

Joshua Johnson joined NAAHR in 2013 as a Business Services Consultant for the Division of Vocational Rehabilitation. During his membership, Joshua has facilitated successful relationships with fellow NAAHR Members Theresa Jones-Wheaton Franciscan and Teresa Smith-Badger Alloys, with both businesses receiving an Exemplary Employer Award from the Department of Workforce Development last year during the National Disability Employment Awareness Month event for their practices in partnering with DVR to build an even more diverse workforce by hiring individuals with disabilities. Joshua is a member of the Talent Management Committee, the Communications Committee and the Outreach Committee of NAAHR. Although, Joshua is not an actual HR professional, his vast insight has brought a different flavor to NAAHR Milwaukee. Joshua has helped with talent recruitment at Bryant and Stratton and represented NAAHR at One Day To Make A Difference where he assisted in mock interviewing high school kids and giving them feedback. Joshua's dedication to NAAHR, coming to a meeting just to pay his membership fee even while dealing with a personal tragedy represents the person that he is and why he deserves this award.

Joshua was recently promoted into a permanent position with the State of Wisconsin in the Bureau of Apprenticeship Standards as an Apprenticeship Training Representative.
