Academic Standards and Policies for this Major: To complete a major in social work, students must go through a formal application process. Applications are accepted each semester, with a fall deadline of October 10 and a spring deadline of March 1. Ideally, application takes place the second semester of sophomore year. To be eligible to apply, students must have completed (or be in progress with completing) 45 credits of undergraduate coursework, SOC 101, and SOC/SW 261. Students must also have earned a minimum grade of C- in SOC/SW 261, a minimum overall grade point average of 2.5, and be in good academic standing in the semester of application. To remain in the social work major, students must maintain a minimum overall grade point average of 2.5, a minimum grade point average of 2.5 in the social work major, and a grade of C- or better in each required social work course. Students must also comply with the standards for professional conduct outlined in the NASW Code of Ethics.

*For a Bachelor of Arts degree you also need to complete 8 credits in a two-semester sequence of university entry-level world language courses

(101, 102). The requirement may be fulfilled through equivalent coursework or other language acquisition as demonstrated through a test-out policy (including Native American languages and American Sign Language).
