

What is Project SEARCH?

Project SEARCH is a nine to 12-month program that provides training and education leading to integrated employment for youth with disabilities. Project SEARCH is a collaboration that includes a local business, school district(s), and the Division of Vocational Rehabilitation (DVR). All partners are vital to the success of the program. The business provides a training classroom, a business liaison, and rotational internships for on-the-job training. The school provides an instructor. DVR works with a local vocational services agency to supply job coaches who support the students on their internships as needed and assist with final job placement. The disability services agency provides follow along services for any eligible student who is hired at the business site or in the community.

Project SEARCH was developed in 1996 by Nurse J. Erin Riehle, then the Director of the Emergency Department at Cincinnati Children's Hospital Medical Center. As the flagship program, Cincinnati Children's Hospital provides technical assistance for replication and leadership worldwide.

The cornerstone of Project SEARCH is total immersion in a large business. Each day, students report to the host business, learn employability skills in the classroom and job skills while participating in three or four internships during the year. If available, students utilize public transportation. Students participate in progress meetings to define their career goal and plan necessary steps to achieve that goal. Managers at the internship sites work with the Project SEARCH instructor and job coaches to support the students.

The ultimate goal for students upon program completion is competitive community employment utilizing the skills learned on their internships and throughout their Project SEARCH experience.

What are the outcomes?

As of Fall 2018, Project SEARCH has over 600 programs internationally, with Project SEARCH sites in 47 states and nine countries. Traditionally, healthcare facilities have been the most common sites, though in recent years new types of host sites have emerged including airports, manufacturing facilities, casinos, and even national parks!

Nationwide, the employment rate for Project SEARCH graduates during the 2017-18 school year was 67.1 percent. That same year, 69 percent of Wisconsin Project SEARCH graduates were employed upon completion of the program.

In Wisconsin, a total of 186 students completed Project SEARCH programs during the 2017-18 school year, participating in programs held at 27 unique host sites throughout the state.
